From Barriers to Breakthroughs Creating Pathways for Women in Science

Dr. Manish Mohan Gore

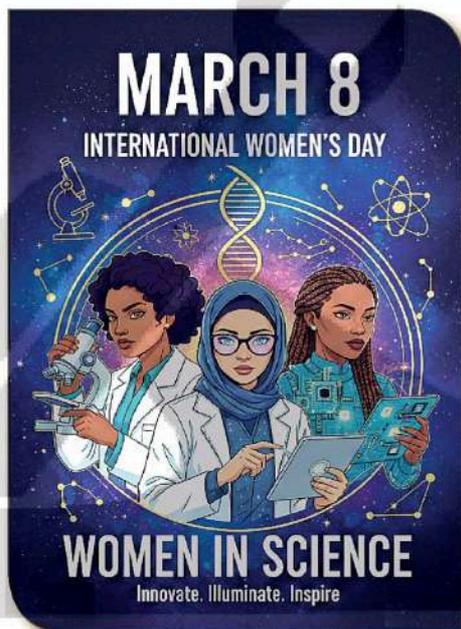

From its earliest discoveries to its boldest innovations, India's scientific legacy has been shaped by the brilliance and determination of exceptional women. Pioneers such as Asima Chatterjee, whose work on anti-malarial drugs saved millions of lives, and Kamala Sohoni, who challenged social and gender barriers to pursue laboratory research, laid strong foundations under difficult circumstances. In more recent decades, figures such as Indian-American astronaut Sunita Williams, public health leader Soumya Swaminathan, and missile scientist Tessy Thomas have continued this legacy, demonstrating women's leadership in fields vital to the nation's progress. Together, their journeys affirm a central truth: women in India are not exceptions in science, but indispensable contributors shaping the country's future through research, innovation, and leadership.

Yet these achievements emerged despite longstanding constraints. Science and technology flourish most when talent from all sections of society can thrive, but for much of India's scientific history, women faced persistent social and institutional barriers that limited their participation and advancement. Restricted access to laboratories, career interruptions due to family responsibilities, entrenched societal expectations, and systemic bias often stood in the way. In such an environment, excellence and dedication alone were rarely enough to ensure opportunity.

Recognising these structural challenges, the Government of India has progressively worked to create a more inclusive ecosystem for women in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). What distinguishes this approach is its focus on continuity across the life and career of a woman scientist. Rather than relying solely on isolated scholarships or short-term initiatives, current policies emphasise sustained support—encouraging girls' early engagement with science, enabling higher education, facilitating re-entry after career breaks, and fostering leadership in advanced research and innovation.

Igniting Curiosity Early

The roots of gender disparity in science often take hold early, during the school years, when many girls gradually disengage due to limited exposure, lack of confidence, or the absence of visible role models. Addressing this critical stage, programmes such as Vigyan Jyoti, implemented by the Department of Science and Technology (DST), intervene early to nurture scientific curiosity. Each year, thousands of girls from Classes 9 to 12—particularly from under represented and rural districts—are given opportunities to explore science through hands-on learning and guided mentorship.

These initiatives extend well beyond conventional classroom instruction. Participants engage with fields such as robotics, artificial intelligence, biotechnology, astronomy, and computer coding—often for the first time—while visits to research laboratories and interactions with women scientists make scientific careers tangible and attainable. Such exposure helps dismantle the notion that science is "not meant for girls," enabling many participants to pursue engineering, medicine, and the basic sciences with renewed confidence.

Complementing these efforts, the INSPIRE-MANAK programme fosters creativity and problem-solving among school students, including large numbers of girls. By supporting simple, low-cost innovations addressing real-world challenges—such as access to clean water, energy conservation, and improved agricultural tools—the programme reinforces the idea that science is both practical and socially relevant, rooted in everyday experience as well as future possibility.

Supporting Higher Education: From Aspiration to Access

As girls move from school to higher education, financial and institutional support becomes crucial. National schemes such as the AICTE's Pragati Scholarship and the UGC's Indira Gandhi Postgraduate Scholarship for Single Girl Child help ease the financial pressures that often prevent women from continuing technical studies.

Financial aid alone, however, is not sufficient. Mentoring, guidance, and hands-on experience are equally important. Programmes like Karyashala place undergraduate and postgraduate women students in advanced research laboratories for short training periods, helping them gain confidence and practical insight into scientific work. For many, this exposure marks a key turning point in their academic journey.

In addition, women's universities and colleges receive targeted support through the CURIE programme, which strengthens laboratory facilities, computing access, and research infrastructure, ensuring that women students are not limited by lack of resources.

Reclaiming Careers: Science After a Break

A key feature of India's approach to women in science is its recognition of career breaks. Many women scientists step away from research due to marriage, childbirth, caregiving responsibilities, or social expectations, leading to the loss of highly trained talent at critical stages.

The Department of Science and Technology's WISE-KIRAN framework directly addresses this challenge. Schemes such as WISE-PhD, WISE-Postdoctoral Fellowships, and WISE-SCOPE enable women to return to research or shift their focus after a break, offering structured funding, research independence, and institutional support.

Similarly, the Department of Biotechnology's BioCARE programme supports women re-entering biotechnology research. Projects under BioCARE have contributed to areas such as vaccines, diagnostics, agriculture, and modern biology, reinforcing the message that career breaks do not diminish scientific capability.

Dr. Shubha V. Iyengar : In Conversation

The Government of India has honoured Dr. Shubha V. Iyengar, a distinguished woman scientist, with the Padma Shri for her outstanding contribution to aviation safety. Dr. Shubha V. is best known for developing 'Drishti', an indigenous aviation safety technology designed to enhance situational awareness and decision-making during critical flight operations. The system addresses one of the most challenging aspects of aviation—safe navigation and landing under low visibility and adverse weather conditions—thereby significantly improving operational safety for pilots and air traffic services.

Q: How can schools, colleges, and families encourage girls to pursue research careers?

A: My 46 years in science showed me that women can excel when they have passion, confidence, and support. Mentorship from seniors and colleagues played a key role in my own journey. Girls should be encouraged early to follow their interests. Teachers and families must recognise potential, guide them well, and provide consistent support.

Q: Why is mentorship and women's leadership visibility important?

A: Mentorship builds confidence, especially at early career stages. Support from seniors motivates young scientists and helps them succeed in the long term.

Q: What policy steps are needed to increase women's participation in research leadership?

A: Institutions must strictly ensure equal treatment of women and men, judging only the quality of work, not gender.

Q: How do you see women's role in India's scientific future?

A: Women should be given equal importance based on merit. Their participation across all fields is essential for national progress.

Q: What career options are open to girls studying science today?

A: Beyond medicine and engineering, careers range from teaching, research leadership, administration, law, banking, entrepreneurship, and civil services.

Q: What message do you have for young girls aspiring to be scientists?

A: Believe in yourself, work hard, and do not be discouraged by obstacles. Confidence matters more than perfection—focus on contributing meaningfully and with integrity.

From Barriers to Breakthroughs...

Building Women's Leadership in Science

Women's leadership in science is essential, yet for decades women were underrepresented as principal investigators, laboratory heads, and decision-makers. Funding agencies are now taking deliberate steps to address this imbalance. The POWER scheme supports women leading research projects through long-term funding, childcare support, and flexible, interdisciplinary work arrangements, recognising that leadership must accommodate real-life responsibilities.

Broader institutional change is encouraged through the GATI initiative, which asks universities and research organisations to review recruitment, evaluation, and workplace culture. Its aim is not to change women, but to reform institutions to make them fairer and more inclusive.

Where Women Lead: Biotechnology, Health, and Climate

Women scientists are increasingly leading research in areas with direct social impact. In biotechnology and health sciences, women-led teams contribute to vaccines, disease control, nutrition, and genetics, while programmes such as Skill Vigyan help align scientific training with industry needs. In earth and climate sciences, initiatives under the Ministry of Earth Sciences introduce women to oceanography, weather science, and climate research through hands-on fieldwork. Together, these efforts highlight women as key contributors to national priorities in health, climate action, and sustainable development.

Space, Innovation, and National Vision

Space science has a powerful capacity to inspire. Through programmes such as YUVIKA and ShakthiSAT, the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) is engaging young women via residential camps, satellite-building workshops, and interactions with women space scientists, challenging traditional assumptions about careers in aerospace. Innovation platforms such as Atal Tinkering Labs also prioritise girl-led projects in robotics, clean energy, and digital technologies, leading to increased patent filings, prototypes, and start-ups by young women.

Measuring Impact

Evidence from across ministries points to steady progress. Women's enrolment in science and engineering has risen, particularly in regions with active outreach. Schemes such as WISE-KIRAN and BioCARE have supported thousands of women researchers, many of whom are now publishing, patenting, and mentoring the next generation. Retention is strengthened through leadership training, international exposure via WINGS, and professional networks that support progression into senior roles.

The Road Ahead

Despite visible gains, challenges remain, including funding delays, uneven implementation, and persistent social expectations. Nevertheless, India's approach is shifting from inclusion to excellence, recognising women as central to scientific and national innovation. Future initiatives under the National Education Policy and science ministries aim to expand institutional reform, global collaboration, and women-led interdisciplinary research. The focus is no longer only on removing barriers, but on building ambitious, inclusive pathways that allow women to lead, innovate, and shape the nation's future.

PM Modi conferred with 'Speaker of the Knesset' Medal

Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi paid a two-day official visit to Israel from February 25 to 26, 2026, during which he held comprehensive discussions with Prime Minister of Israel Mr. Benjamin Netanyahu in Tel Aviv. The two Prime Ministers reviewed the full spectrum of bilateral relations and explored avenues to expand cooperation in water management, agriculture, science and technology, innovation and human capital development. They also exchanged views on major regional developments. Addressing the Israeli Parliament, the Knesset, in Jerusalem, PM Modi reaffirmed India's solidarity with Israel following the October 7 Hamas terror attack, and reiterated India's unwavering policy of zero tolerance towards terrorism. He also expressed support for efforts aimed at achieving durable peace and regional stability, including the UN-endorsed Gaza Peace Initiative. Meanwhile, PM Netanyahu described his Indian counterpart as a "dear friend" and lauded his leadership in strengthening India-Israel ties. Also, PM Modi was conferred the 'Speaker of the Knesset Medal', the highest honour of the Israeli Parliament, becoming the first leader to receive the distinction. Meanwhile, in New Delhi, Union Minister of Commerce and Industry Shri Piyush Goyal held discussions with an Israeli delegation to advance negotiations on the proposed India-Israel Free Trade Agreement, reflecting continued momentum in bilateral economic engagement.

CBDC-Based Digital Food Currency to Strengthen Welfare Delivery Mechanism

The Government of India has launched a pilot of Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC)-based Digital Food Currency under the Pradhan Mantri Garib Kalyan Anna Yojana (PMGKAY) in Puducherry, marking a significant step towards strengthening welfare delivery mechanisms and improving transparency in food subsidy distribution. Inaugurating the initiative, Union Minister Shri Pralhad Joshi said the integration of CBDC into the Public Distribution System (PDS) will enable direct, real-time transfer of food subsidies to beneficiaries' digital wallets, replacing conventional bank transfers. The RBI-issued programmable digital currency will be provided as digital coupons redeemable at Fair Price Shops and authorised outlets. The pilot aims to ensure accurate, secure, and purpose-bound subsidy delivery while addressing operational challenges such as biometric authentication issues.

Army, Railways Launch Reemployment Cooperation Framework for Agniveers, Veterans

The Indian Army and Indian Railways have launched a "Framework of Cooperation" to enhance post-retirement employment opportunities for Agniveers and retiring Army personnel. The initiative aims to ease the transition of soldiers into civilian careers by promoting awareness of job roles in the Railways, streamline recruitment processes for agniveers and veterans, and establish dedicated support systems for personnel nearing retirement. The framework seeks to leverage the discipline and skills of former soldiers in areas such as security, operations, maintenance, logistics and administration within the Railways. It builds on existing provisions like reservations and age relaxations for ex-servicemen and encourages better skill-matching and inter-ministerial coordination. Meanwhile, Chandigarh has approved 20% horizontal reservation for ex-Agniveers in Jail Warden posts. The quota will also apply to eligible posts in the Fire Services, Forest Department, and Chandigarh Police.

Rail Tech Reforms to Boost Tech Jobs

Announcing the Rail Tech Policy in New Delhi, Railways Minister Shri Ashwini Vaishnaw said the initiative will promote large-scale adoption of AI and data-driven solutions across the rail network. The focus is on improving passenger safety, security and track monitoring through predictive technologies, driving demand for AI engineers, data scientists and cybersecurity experts. The Minister also launched the Rail Tech Portal to connect innovators with Railway projects and introduced the e-Railway Claims Tribunal to digitise case processing, opening further scope in legal-tech and automation.

Rs. 797 Crore Green Hydrogen Jetty at Paradip to Drive Jobs and Sustainable Growth

The Centre has approved a Rs. 797 crore green hydrogen and ammonia handling jetty at Paradip Port, positioning it as a key hub under the National Green Hydrogen Mission with a dedicated 4 MTPA capacity. To be developed on a build-operate-transfer (BOT) basis, the project will create significant employment during its 24-month construction phase and generate long-term jobs in port operations, logistics, storage, and maintenance. By strengthening export infrastructure for green hydrogen and related cargo, it is also expected to attract fresh investments and stimulate ancillary industries in Odisha. With provisions to manage other liquid cargo in the initial phase, the project aims to build a resilient, future-ready port ecosystem that supports clean energy expansion while promoting sustainable industrial growth in eastern India.

National Monetisation Pipeline 2.0 Aims to Add Rs. 40 Lakh Crore to GDP

The launch of the National Monetisation Pipeline 2.0 (NMP 2.0) is set to drive a fresh wave of infrastructure-led growth, with NITI Aayog projecting a potential Rs. 40 lakh crore boost to GDP over the next five to ten years. Union Finance Minister Ms. Nirmala Sitharaman unveiled NMP 2.0 in New Delhi, outlining a Rs. 16.72 lakh crore asset monetisation target for FY26-FY30, including Rs. 5.8 lakh crore in private investment. Developed by NITI Aayog in consultation with infrastructure ministries, the plan spans 12 sectors including highways, railways, power, ports, coal and telecom. The programme will recycle revenue from operating public assets into new capital expenditure, accelerating infrastructure creation while minimising budgetary strain. Building on nearly 90% achievement of NMP 1.0 targets, the second phase is over 2.6 times larger and aligned with the Viksit Bharat vision.

India, Bhutan Enhance Trans-Boundary River Management to Tackle Climate Change

India and Bhutan have stepped up cooperation on trans-boundary rivers and hydropower, with a strong focus on addressing emerging challenges arising from climate change, glacial lake outburst floods (GLOFs), and extreme weather events. During Secretary-level talks on 25 February in Bhutan, both sides discussed strengthening flood forecasting systems, modernising hydro-meteorological networks, and improving real-time data sharing on trans-border rivers. The discussions also covered capacity building, technical exchanges, and enhanced cooperation in managing shared water resources amid rising climate risks. Floods triggered by heavy rain or glacial lake outburst floods in Bhutan can impact downstream Indian states, making data sharing and coordinated forecasting vital. These rivers also support hydropower, livelihoods, and water security, all of which are increasingly influenced by climate change.

Pakistan Declares 'Open War' with Strikes on Afghan Cities

On February 26, 2026, Pakistan launched airstrikes on Kabul, Kandahar and Paktia under "Operation Ghazab Lil Haq," declaring "open war" against Afghanistan following a reported February 25 border attack that killed 55 Pakistani troops. Pakistan's Defence Minister Mr. Khawaja Asif said the country's "patience has reached its limit," citing action against Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) camps. Kabul termed its response retaliatory, accusing Pakistan of earlier air raids causing casualties inside Afghanistan. As of February 27, 2026, both sides have reported heavy losses, border crossings remain largely shut, and no ceasefire has been announced despite international calls for restraint.
